Shiraz,
Comment from a youth activist from Nyandarua after reading 'Kimaathi: Mau Mau's First Prime Minister'.

Abdul,

I am through with reading this book but i am tempted to re-read. The most interesting thing are the organisational set-up of the troops.

One cannot expect these guys to be that intelligent. Their intelligence overwhelms me. They were able to organise themselves to a level of forming a parliament, carry out secret ballots and all this took place in the bush. I also admire their changes of tactics with seasons on the way they are facing the 'enemy'. I feel bad that the author of this book 'Shiraz Durrani' is living in exile. Such people who are rich in knowledge upto now cannot enjoy our hard-got and fought for independence.

Regards, David.
